

1
2
3
4
5
6
7
8
9
10 11 12
13 14
15
16
17
18 19 20 21
22
23
24
25

SUPREME COURT OF THE STATE OF NEW YORK

COUNTY OF NEW YORK - CIVIL TERM - PART 17

-----x

CENTER ON PRIVACY & TECHNOLOGY, Plaintiff,

-against-

Index No.
154060-2017

NEW YORK CITY POLICE DEPARTMENT,
Defendant.

-----x

60 Centre Street
New York, New York
October 31, 2018

Oral Argument

B E F O R E: HONORABLE SHLOMO S. HAGLER, Justice

A P P E A R A N C E S:

GEORGETOWN LAW
Attorneys For the Plaintiff
600 New Jersey Avenue, NW
Washington, DC 20001
BY: STEPHANIE K. GLABERSON, ESQ.

NEW YORK CITY LAW DEPARTMENT
OFFICE OF THE CORPORATION COUNSEL
Attorneys For the Defendant
100 Church Street
New York, New York 10007
BY: JEFFREY DANTOWITZ, ESQ.

NEW YORK POLICE DEPARTMENT
Attorneys For the Defendant
One Police Plaza
New York, New York 10038
BY: LESA MOORE, ESQ.

Maria E. Rivera
Senior Court Reporter

Proceedings

1
2
3
4
5
6
7
8
9
10 11 12
13 14
15
16
17
18 19 20 21
22
23
24
25

SSM
J.S. 65

THE COURT: Let's go on the record.

Good morning. Thank you for being patient. We had a brief discussion with regard to ~~—pursuant~~ to a matter while we were in the robing room.

As you saw, I have read the latest submissions, and they were quite numerous. I also pulled some of the cases. I also went back to the prior motions and reviewed them again because this case has been on many many times. And the last time we did anything substantively was probably the summertime, and it's several months later. I wanted to make sure I was in the same position that you were in. And I have reread most of the submissions again while you were waiting.

So I apologize for your waiting. I ask for indulgence because I want to make the right decision. I want to be fresh in my mind what the motions are.

I think the best way to just start is dealing with the discreet issues first, and then we'll get to the bigger issues, because I think we all want to get to the nonroutine procedure technique first. I think that would be the last. Let's deal with the little issues first, then we will get to the big issues.

I would like to deal with motion sequence number 3 which is the issue of the notice to admit. It's a very discreet area and it will be easier to deal with that first,

Proceedings

1
2
3
4
5
6
7
8
9
10 11 12
13 14
15
16
17
18 19 20 21
22
23
24
25

and then we'll build on that.

So I think both parties made motions on this.

MS. GLABERSON: That's correct.

THE COURT: A motion to compel and a motion to strike. I'm not sure ^{who} ~~if we~~ made the first one. ~~I think it was~~ I think the first motion came from the respondent. So I'll let you argue that. Obviously, we have the motion to compel. It's the same issue, but ~~in~~ conversely.

SSM
DSD

Counsel.

MR. DANTOWITZ: Thank you, Your Honor. Jeffrey Dantowitz for the Police Department. I have with me counsel from the Police Department, Lesa Moore. And I want to thank you all for taking the time to read the papers just now and with the first issues, and I'm happy to discuss and to answer any questions that Your Honor may have.

THE COURT: Just start. This will be quick. ~~I don't think this will be a~~ This should be the easier of the issues that we have to contend with.

SSM
S.L.C.

MR. DANTOWITZ: So on July 3rd of this year, a couple of months ago, the petitioner served on NYPD a notice to admit, primarily with respect to an article that appeared in The Wall Street Journal previously in April, two months ago, three months earlier. That notice, Your Honor, was untimely under CPLR 408 which requires that a notice to admit be served no later than three days before the

Proceedings

4

1 petition's noticed to be heard.

2 In this case, Your Honor, the petition was noticed 3 to be heard on June 2nd. And subsequently adjourned by 4 stipulation to August 15th of 2017. So the return date, 5 Your Honor, was almost a year before the notice to admit was 6 served. So, Your Honor, it's improper because it was just 7 plainly untimely.

8 The petitioner will argue that that's incorrect 9 because, if I understand their argument correctly, they 10 suggest that every adjournment of the oral argument and 11 every subsequent adjournment of court conferences actually 12 constituted an adjournment for a return date. That's 13 incorrect, Your Honor.

14 In our papers we have cited the rules and protocols 15 of this court. We've made it plain that the return date of 16 the motion is the date that the papers are to be served, 17 filed in the motions support office in Room 130 either 18 electronically or by paper. And that was done as of last 19 August.

20 It's very clear that in this court the return date 21 comes first. Should the presiding Judge wish to have oral 22 argument or court conferences, the presiding Judge may do 23 so. That does not impact at all the fact that the return 24 date is a set date by which the papers were submitted. And 25 again in this case they were submitted well, well before the

Proceedings

5

1 notice to admit was served.

2 We also argue that the notice is improper because 3 it doesn't serve the purposes for which a notice to admit is 4 intended, which is to eliminate from litigation any factual 5 issues that might come up at trial. Here, Your Honor, it's 6 clear that no hearing has been scheduled, no trial has been 7 scheduled.

8 And although the petitioner purports to argue that 9 the notice to admit goes to the City's waiver of its ability 10 to assert a non-exemption -- nonroutine technique exemption.
11 As of the time the notice to admit was served, that was not 12 even an issue in this case.

13 So, Your Honor, the petitioner is creating an issue 14 and then using the notice to admit to foster and to further 15 that issue.

16 Most and very importantly, Your Honor, but this is 17 not in our papers, the petitioner is using the notice to 18 admit as a discovery device. It is using it as a way to 19 compel NYPD to acknowledge that it made certain statements, 20 and in doing so to compel NYPD to acknowledge -- to 21 effectuate a waiver.

22 There is no case I'm aware of, Your Honor, either 23 in state court or the analogous federal cases under the 24 federal Freedom of Information Act that would require any 25 discovery of such an issue or would require an agency to

Proceedings

6

1 admit or confirm that it made statements that might have 2 appeared in the press or that might have been disclosed in 3 any other setting in order to determine whether there was a 4 waiver or not.

5 A waiver is a burden that's borne by in this case 6 by petitioner. The analogous federal cases which the 7 petitioner appears to adopt here, saying that in order for 8 there to be a waiver there must be disclosure, there must be 9 a showing. It's a very high burden, Your Honor. That the 10 material that was disclosed is exactly the same as that 11 which was being withheld.

12 Here there's no -- they're woefully short of that.
13 What they are trying to do is get discovery as to that. And 14 in fact, Your Honor, there are many many cases under the 15 federal statute in which a waiver argument is rejected for 16 the specific reason that the petitioner, or the plaintiff in 17 federal court, that the plaintiff has not demonstrated that 18 the information disclosed and the information withheld are 19 exactly the same. And in those cases, and I'm not aware of 20 any cases, and the petitioner does not cite any cases 21 informative, in none of those cases does the court say, you 22 know what, the plaintiff has not demonstrated that there is 23 an equivalence of these two pieces of information, but go 24 take discovery and figure it out.

25 And again, Your Honor, for your information so that

Proceedings

7

1 is I think plain because the Court -- the Court cannot 2 compel an agency, and I would suggest specific with respect
3 to Luongo it cannot compel an agency to waive its exemption.

4 And with that point, Your Honor, I will answer any 5 questions you have, but again it cannot limit us --

6 THE COURT: Thank you.

7 Opposition and your motion ~~to pick up~~.

8 MS. GLABERSON: Your Honor, to respond, I don't 9 want to spend a lot of time here talking about counsel's 10 argument about when the return date is. But ultimately Your 11 Honor has the power under the CPLR to forgive any CPLR 12 2004 -- to forgive any failure on our part to be timely.
13 However, on that point the defendant has provided his work 14 with good cause to forgive any failure to meet any return 15 dates such as they are. Your Honor can look at the papers 16 that were filed to parse out that argument.

17 But these events had not yet occurred as of the 18 date that counsel relies on. These events happened over the 19 spring and summer, and they became relevant when the Center
20 finally received the NYPD's disclosures and exemption laws
21 and figured out sort of what the Department here, what is it 22 actually claiming with regards to these records.

23 And for the reasons stated in our papers, the 24 Center has shown good cause, should Your Honor see fit to 25 excuse any such delay and to compel the Department to

Proceedings

8

1 respond to this notice.

2 The Department has not raised any argument that it 3 will be prejudiced by being required to respond to this 4 notice. The notice itself does not effectuate a waiver. It 5 is the Department's conduct that may or may not have 6 effectuated a waiver contained within that article written 7 by The Wall Street Journal reporter and then the cooperation 8 and sign-off of NYPD personnel, many of whom are the 9 affiants here in this case.

10 This issue is highly relevant to this case and has 11 been since the Department itself put forward or engaged in 12 this practice of releasing information to the public outside 13 of this courtroom. It has been relevant to this case 14 throughout.

15 The Department comes in here and swears under oath
16 the information contained in these records regarding face 17 recognition technology is so sensitive that it cannot be 18 released to the public, despite the serious risk to the 19 public of a face recognition program that is poorly run or 20 run without the appropriate guardrails of misidentification 21 and misuse.

22 It is the public that bears the burden of being 23 hauled into court into criminal proceedings with which they 24 have nothing to do on the basis of this face recognition 25 program.

Proceedings

9

1 Despite those serious risks, the Department comes 2 in here and says that these records are so sensitive that 3 they cannot be released because they fall under FOIL. But 4 then turns around and releases information, and now we have 5 a pattern of these practices to those with the power or the 6 money to pay for access to that information. And this is 7 exactly the kind of situation that FOIL was designed to 8 prevent.

9 For this reason, we are argue that this notice to 10 admit is extremely relevant to these proceedings. And that 11 Your Honor should compel the Department to respond.

12 THE COURT: Counsel, anything else?

13 MR. DANTOWITZ: Yes, Your Honor. If the petitioner 14 thought there was no waiver argument here or a waiver, what 15 she should have done is come to court and said so, not serve 16 or brought to Your Honor's attention as soon as they thought 17 there was such an issue. She hasn't. And she served a 18 notice to admit. And then what were they going to do with 19 it? And you could see more proceedings and put in more 20 papers and more papers and more papers. This is not the way 21 court proceedings were ever intended to be.

22 Petitioner says there's no prejudice by the notice 23 to admit, that's completely false, Your Honor. The 24 prejudice is exactly what they are asking us to do is to 25 confirm -- not conduct -- it's statements that were made to

Proceedings

10

1 a reporter, and in so doing we would be forced to confirm 2 that those statements were made, the accuracy of those 3 statements and therefore effectuate a waiver.

4 Therefore, Your Honor, this is a discovery device.
5 It's nothing but a rank discovery device. And they should 6 be rejected.

7 Thank you.

8 THE COURT: CPLR 408 provides that leave of court 9 shall be required for disclosure except for a notice under 10 section 3123. A notice under section 3123 may be served at 11 any time not later than three days before the petition 12 noticed to be heard and the statement denying or setting 13 forth the reasons for failing to admit or deny shall be 14 served not later than one day before the petition is noticed 15 to be heard, unless the court orders otherwise on motion 16 made without notice.

17 I'm going to excuse any late filing.

18 I'm not going to pursue the procedural argument.

19 Counsel is correct. The Court can excuse a late 20 filing. And I'm going to go right into the merits as I have 21 done throughout this proceeding. I don't think it's worth 22 my words and effort to get into a procedural argument at 23 this stage, given that we are, for the better part of at 24 least a year, litigating this matter. I think that the 25 parties deserve a substantive decision.

Proceedings

11

1 CPLR 3123 provides for admissions as to matters of 2 fact, papers, documents and photographs. CPLR 3123 provides 3 that a party may seek admissions as to which the party
4 requesting the admission reasonably believes there can be no 5 substantial dispute at the trial and which are within the 6 knowledge of such other party or can be ascertained by him 7 upon reasonable inquiry.

8 The request for admissions require that the 9 respondent answer disputed facts at trial. It goes to the 10 defense of waiver. It is not the type of notice to admit 11 that would elicit non-disputed information.

12 The only possible request for admission that 13 without request Number 10, was there a Wall Street Journal
14 article published? That I think should be responded to. I 15 think it's a simple request.

16 All the others go into communications between 17 parties and is better suited for a discovery device that is 18 not a notice to admit, because it does go to disputed facts 19 and into the defenses that the petitioner has raised, 20 specifically the issue of waiver, which we will deal with 21 later. This would amount to a discovery device without 22 leave of court.

23 In order to get this information, you would have to 24 have made a motion to seek leave of court in order to 25 determine and obtain these allegations, whether it will be

Proceedings

594
D.92

1 true or not, it's probably more of an interrogatory ~~for~~ a 2 deposition. This is not the standard notice to admit, in 3 admitting there was a recent executed photograph, here I'm 4 allowing only one request to be answered. And I'm not sure 5 if you want it in writing or not. I think it's a simple 6 request. It's request Number 10.

7 Is that a true copy of what was published in The 8 Wall Street Journal? If you have reason to believe it's 9 not, just answer that within 20 days hereof, as the statute
10 requires in a non-petition within a year later, 20 days I 11 think is fine. And it shouldn't take longer than 20 days to 12 admit or deny or provide for the answers.

594
D.92

13 As pursuant to the CPLR 3123, I'm granting both 14 motions to the extent it's compelling only request Number 10 15 to be answered. And striking the rest of the notice to 16 admit which need not be answered.

17 MR. DANTOWITZ: Thank you, Judge.

18 THE COURT: You are welcome. Let's move on.

19 Off the record.

20 (Whereupon, there is a discussion held off the 21 record.)

22 THE COURT: Let's go back on the record.

23 I think that the next issue we should deal with is 24 waiver. I'm doing it in specific to general ^{order} because I think 25 it makes a lot more sense to do it that way. And let's deal

594
D.92

Proceedings

1 with the issue of whether or not the respondent waived any 2 of the exemptions set forth in FOIL. I believe that the 3 petitioner has propounded that argument and should begin. I 4 know there has been submissions by the parties.

5 Just to clarify the record, the petitioner has sent 6 a letter dated October 4, 2018 to this Court. In that 7 letter the petitioner alleges that a member of the 8 petitioner went to a summit on September 17, 2018, wherein 9 respondent gave information to the public. Petitioner 10 alleges that approximately 35 or so attendees were there.
 11 ~~At that time they strike that.~~

SSR
 7.54

12 Petitioner discussed in great detail the use of 13 facial recognition technology. There were slides. The 14 petitioner representative took photos of the slides that 15 were previously redacted, and they were now in full view in 16 this summit on September 17, 2018.

17 The petitioner alleges that their representative, 18 Ms. Garvie, was permitted to do so, and as such has waived 19 the respondent's right now to argue that the exemption is 20 still effective.

21 ~~I'll allow counsel to let me continue. I~~ 22 ~~apologize.~~ Let me just continue with what I received, so 23 the record is clear.

24 So I received that letter of October 4, 2018. It 25 was accompanied by an affidavit of Clare Garvie. ~~It is~~

SSR

Proceedings

14

1 dated ~~strike~~ that. It was sworn to on October 13, 2018.
2 There are Exhibits A through S. And in those exhibits there 3 are copies of the redacted portion, and then below that 4 there's an unredacted portion that was allegedly provided at 5 the summit.

7 I also have a memorandum of law requiring NYPD's 8 purported waiver which is dated October 29, 2018, which 9 effectively contests that there has been a waiver.

11 I also have a letter from the petitioner dated 12 October 30, 2018, which I think is essentially a reply to 13 the opposition.

14 That sets the record straight in terms of what 15 documents this Court has reviewed.

17 And I reviewed, I actually pulled some of the 18 cases. Again, I apologize for the delay, but I received 19 this only today, so that meant I had a little bit of time to 20 review. I did my best to review, and I actually pulled some 21 of the cases that I cited to you right now and pulled some 22 more based upon what I cited.

23 So I'll allow counsel for petitioner to argue the 24 waiver issue.

25 MS. GLABERSON: So it's our understanding of where we stand today, there is only a narrow issue in contest as to the waiver issue. The Department has conceded that it has waived any claims to exemption that identifies to the

Proceedings

15

1 slides of which there are now photographs in the record.
2 And that any claims of exemption as to those documents are 3 now waived and those documents will be released in full.

4 THE COURT: Let me just stop there because I 5 believe the memo did state exactly what counsel just 6 reiterated. So, Counsel, are you going to now provide the 7 specific slides that were redacted within a certain period 8 of time?

9 MR. DANTOWITZ: Yes, Your Honor, we will produce 10 the 19 slides.

11 THE COURT: When? Within what period of time?

12 MR. DANTOWITZ: Within a week.

13 THE COURT: Within a week? Done.

14 MS. GLABERSON: That's fine.

15 THE COURT: Let's move on.

16 MS. GLABERSON: So the only remaining issue as to 17 waiver, as I understand it, is whether the information that 18 was revealed to the public by the Department at this session 19 and is memorialized in Ms. Garvie's affidavit which has now 20 been memorialized, sworn to and filed publically on the 21 docket in this case, and any information that appears in 22 those, not only the affidavit but also the slides, that also 23 appears elsewhere in the records but is redacted, whether 24 the NYPD has also waived its claim of exemption as to that.
25 And the Center's argument is that it has. And that is a

Proceedings

16

1 narrow question.

2 What this incident brings up is a larger issue 3 about the implacability of a nonroutine techniques and 4 procedures to the exemption, and whether the Department has 5 appropriately asserted it here. And whether Your Honor can 6 look to the Department's treatment of its own information 7 and behavior in this case to understand more clearly whether 8 this technique is routine, and whether the Department 9 sincerely believes that revealing information details about 10 it and its functioning would cause any issue to the 11 effectiveness of the technique.

12 So that's a larger issue that is brought up by this 13 incident. And we think it's the more important one.

14 As to the waiver question, we think the law is 15 clear. And my reading of the Department's memo does not 16 dispute this. That was the same information that appears in 17 these documents, appears in the records elsewhere, that 18 waiver also applies. So my understanding is it will 19 continue with the argument as to the nonroutine techniques
20 and procedures to the exemption but I --

21 THE COURT: No, I don't want to get there yet. I 22 want to first deal with the waiver issue because, quite 23 frankly, if there is a waiver, that really ends our 24 discussion at least for that narrow exemption. And, quite 25 frankly, that's the bulk of it. That would narrow our view

Proceedings

17

1 considerably, that would the best way to describe it. I 2 think it would take us the rest of the day to be finished if 3 that exemption was removed.

4 MS. GLABERSON: So the information that was 5 revealed during the summit, that was revealed to a mixed 6 group of professionals, industry personnel, academics, 7 including my client, revealed an immense amount of detail
8 about the functioning of the NYPD's face recognition system.
9 It revealed what features on the face they just look at when 10 they compare photographs. They reveal the hours of 11 operation and location of the facial identification 12 information, facial identification information that had 13 previously been redacted, the number of personnel that work 14 there, and information that was previously redacted, 15 techniques, specific techniques of photo editing and 16 creating generated images to search against the face 17 recognition system, which in our view it's highly 18 problematic and important vital information for the public 19 to know to argue against to help the public assess these 20 risks of misidentification and misuse of face recognition 21 technology.

22 So details of specific and vital information was 23 revealed to this group, a group that by virtue of their 24 positions and their resources were able to pay the fee to 25 enter this conference.

Proceedings

18

1 The Department, as I stated earlier, comes into 2 this court and argues that the public should not have access 3 to this very same information because they argue, you know, 4 the sky will fall. But when faced with a group that has the 5 resources, again same issue, has the resources to pay for 6 access, the Department sings a different song on that 7 concern about the face.

8 So I think I'm pleading into a larger issue here, 9 but our argument is that where any of this information 10 appears in the records, these claims of exemption are 11 waived, and then we have a larger issue of what this means 12 for the Department's assertion of the nonroutine techniques 13 and procedures exemption.

14 THE COURT: Counsel, in opposition.

15 MR. DANTOWITZ: Thank you, Your Honor.

16 Under FOIL it's clear, they're not mandatory, 17 that's clear from the case law, and it's also clear from the 18 case that we cited in our papers. There was a recent 19 decision Luongo, L-U-O-N-G-O, which the Department very 20 clearly was permitted to assert an exemption regarding 21 certain information but not -- but could disclose it with 22 respect to others. And the court in that case upheld by the 23 First Department said that there was no waiver of the 24 general exemption. And that's the case most directly on 25 point here.

Proceedings

19

1 In terms of the analogous federal cases, which 2 again is not disputed, is at least helpful, if not 3 applicable in this case.

4 In order for there to be a waiver, the petitioner, 5 it's the petitioner's burden, and again it's an extremely 6 high burden to recognize that, it's a high burden. The 7 petitioner must demonstrate that the specific information 8 that was disclosed was that which was being withheld.

9 Here, except for the PowerPoints, there is nothing.
10 All there is, is Ms. Garvie's statements as what she said 11 somebody said. We don't know that those statements are 12 accurate. The Department doesn't have to confirm whether 13 they're accurate or not.

14 So, Your Honor, the petitioner falls, again, falls 15 short in satisfying the waiver, it's their burden on the 16 waiver to show that those statements that are in 17 Ms. Garvie's affidavit were previously revealed and 18 previously disclosed.

19 Again with respect to the PowerPoints, specifically 20 the PowerPoints, that's fine, because there's proof.
21 There's the PowerPoint and there's the different redacted
22 version of the PowerPoint, that's clear. But there's no 23 indication, the petitioner has not presented any evidence.
24 And whatever is in those PowerPoints has also been redacted 25 elsewhere. Again, that's their burden, and the case law

Proceedings

20

1 makes that clear.

2 And with respect to you know -- so the first prong 3 clearly is not met here.

4 There is also, I mean I call Your Honor's attention
5 to the case we cited in our brief, the Muslim Advocates case 6 which is a case from 2011 from the District Court in 7 Washington, D.C., where it says that the FBI disclosure 8 started investigations and operations by the civil rights 9 groups and civil liberties groups during the two-hour 10 meeting was not at all a disclosure.

11 So I question even whether the disclosure that was 12 made at One Police Plaza to a group of only 35 people was in 13 fact public disclosure. The only reason it became public 14 was because Ms. Garvie put in an affidavit, not because we 15 put in an affidavit. We didn't disclose it publicly, she 16 did.

17 So to that extent, Your Honor, again we think that 18 the petitioner has not met their burden of showing why we're 19 here. What they are trying to suggest is that by somehow 20 disclosing certain specific information, which we agree we 21 waived, that being the PowerPoint, that somehow we waived 22 either information that might be elsewhere, or their larger 23 point which they -- that that specific waiver now creates a 24 general waiver of our ability to assert the exemption in 25 whole.

Proceedings

21

1 And that, Your Honor, isn't supported by the case
2 law. The petitioner hasn't cited any case law to that 3 effect, and we would request that that application be 4 denied.

5 THE COURT: Counsel, you get the last word.

6 MS. GLABERSON: That's fine. A couple of points.
7 One is that counsel continually both in the papers and here 8 today misrepresents the Center's argument, sets up this 9 straw man then spends his time battling it.

10 What the Center argues is not that by revealing to 11 the 35 people that the Facial Identification Section is 12 located where it's located, that the Department has waived 13 its ability to claim an exemption overall.

14 What the Center has argued is two things, that the 15 specific information that we have pointed to, we have 16 described it specifically and shown Your Honor the exhibits 17 in which its contained as well, is available in a public 18 record and anywhere that that specific information that is 19 memorialized and contained in a publicly available record, 20 that that information wherever it appears in these records 21 claims of exemption are waived as to that.

22 THE COURT: Limited to those 19 slides?

23 MS. GLABERSON: I'm sorry, Your Honor?

24 THE COURT: Limited to those 19 slides?

25 MS. GLABERSON: No. The information contained in

Proceedings

22

1 the slides where that same information appears elsewhere and 2 the information contained in Ms. Garvie's affidavit 3 memorializing what was told, what was presented to this 4 group by Detective Markiewicz at this section. And 5 addressing counsel's --

6 THE COURT: I need you to clarify what you just 7 meant. Are you arguing, let's say for argument's sake the 8 hours of operation is one of the slides, let's say it's in a 9 different document that's not part of the slides, you want 10 that information; is that correct?

11 MS. GLABERSON: That is one aspect of the case, 12 true.

13 THE COURT: I'm just trying to be discreet and 14 specific as to what you're arguing because I'm not getting 15 the full extent of your argument. Are you then 16 extrapolating and arguing that because you gave the hours of 17 operation you now have to give me more documents not related 18 to the hours of operation or it's only connected to the 19 hours of operation, and then we could do the similar 20 arguments for other 18 slides.

21 MS. GLABERSON: So let me attempt to clarify.

22 THE COURT: All right, please.

23 MS. GLABERSON: So there is information contained 24 in these slides. For instance, I would just open to slide 25 Number 11, Exhibit C. Numerous images are always extracted

Proceedings

23

1 from videos to obtain the best possible images for a facial 2 recognition search. That's one example.

3 THE COURT: Where numerous images are obtained, 4 that's what you're arguing about?

5 MS. GLABERSON: Are extracted from videos, that is 6 a piece of information.

7 THE COURT: Okay. And that's a general
8 proposition, fine.

9 MS. GLABERSON: That's a piece of information, 10 where that information appears, the waiver that the 11 Department has conceded is undertaken. That waiver of slides 12 to anywhere that specific information appears, anywhere in 13 these records. So this is why continuing an in-camera 14 inspection regardless of the outcome here today is vitally 15 important we think.

16 THE COURT: So you are limiting it to the 17 information that's in the 19 slides, which would then be 18 disclosed in other documents that the respondent has, but 19 only the information that's limited there would then cut 20 across to the other documents, and that would make those 21 further documents disclosable. But you are not saying in 22 general everything is disclosable because of it?

23 MS. GLABERSON: So the dispute is about whether 24 this is limited to the slides.

25 THE COURT: Correct.

Proceedings

24

1 MS. GLABERSON: Or includes the information that 2 Ms. Garvie memorialized in her affidavit. That's the 3 dispute as to waiver.

4 THE COURT: That is not sufficient. What do you
5 mean "that Ms. Garvie memorialized in her affidavit"? I 6 don't know what that means. Showed a lot of things.

7 MS. GLABERSON: If I can go back to Ms. Garvie's 8 affidavit.

9 THE COURT: Fine.

10 MS. GLABERSON: Let's select an example.

11 THE COURT: One second. Let me just get it. Okay, 12 I have her affidavit.

13 MS. GLABERSON: So for instance, I don't know off 14 the top of my head if this is the best example, but 15 paragraph 11 of Ms. Garvie's affidavit, she documents that 16 the group was told that the database contains approximately 17 9 million photographs, includes not only all NYPD arrest 18 mugshots, but also all juvenile arrest mugshots, photos 19 submitted as a part of pistol license applications, and 20 photos the NYPD has related to desk appearance tickets that 21 it's issued, and the operation of the high intensity drug 22 trafficking area.

23 If there is evidence in the records that this exact 24 information is redacted throughout the records, the sources 25 of the photographs that make up this database and expose

Proceedings

25

1 over the 9 million New Yorkers to the reach of the NYPD's 2 face recognition system, our argument is that where that 3 information that was disclosed to this paying group of 4 summit attendees with seemingly no concern for what they 5 would do with the information, that any claim of the 6 exemption as to that information also gets waived, and 7 that's separate from our larger concern about the exemption 8 as a whole.

9 THE COURT: I'm glad you picked that example. Now 10 you've explained what you're talking about. You're telling 11 me that you're seeking to obtain any oral information that 12 was imparted by the respondents in that summit even if it 13 was not in the slide?

14 MS. GLABERSON: Correct.

15 THE COURT: So it doesn't necessarily have to be a 16 photograph or a slide, any information that was revealed in 17 the summit is subject to waiver?

18 MS. GLABERSON: That we memorialize here, yes, we 19 think --

20 THE COURT: Now you said it clearly.

21 MS. GLABERSON: And we think that the case law 22 supports that.

23 THE COURT: I thought you were saying that. I
24 wanted to make sure there was a record. You are not only 25 seeking the specific information that was recorded in the

Proceedings

26

1 slides, the 19 slides, you want any information incapsulated 2 and revealed at any time during the summit meeting with the 3 respondent?

4 MS. GLABERSON: Yes, as memorialized in 5 Ms. Garvie's affidavit.

6 THE COURT: Thank you. Now I see.

7 MS. GLABERSON: And we believe that we have pointed 8 this Court to specific information, so paragraph 11 is one 9 example. And that it has been revealed publicly by the 10 Department with no concern for how that information would be 11 limited or what the attendees would do with it. And we have 12 supplied the Court with a publicly filed document containing 13 that information.

14 The problem is some of the cases that the 15 Department relies on was that the plaintiffs had taken some 16 notes, but they weren't able to point to specific 17 information that had been provided. They weren't able to 18 point to a publicly available memorialization of that 19 information. And the Court said that wasn't sufficient.

20 What we have here is a much more complete record.
21 We pointed this Court to specific information that was 22 disclosed by the NYPD, and that that information, any claims 23 of exemption as to that information now are waived.

24 THE COURT: Can you point to any case wherein any 25 court anywhere has ever permitted such a waiver to occur? I

Proceedings

27

1 didn't see one case cited where any court in the state, 2 whether it be a state court or a federal court, as a matter 3 of fact, they said the burden was so high, it's a double 4 burden. And even where it was provided to certain 5 attendees, let's say the FBI case which is, I think you just 6 stated it, the Muslim Advocates versus the United States 7 Department of Justice, 833 F.Supp.2d 92, a 2011 case. The 8 court found that that was not a public record.

9 MS. GLABERSON: So again that states the example 10 that I was just describing, that the plaintiffs have not 11 provided specific information and not able to point to 12 specific information.

13 And the other issue in these cases that we don't 14 have here is the government agencies that had done this, had 15 revealed information to groups or other individuals, had 16 done so out of necessity. And this is a very different 17 situation. For the CIA to go to a reporter and carefully 18 reveal information to protect sources and methods to ensure 19 that that reporter who they had learned was about to publish 20 a case or publish a story, it would reveal something that 21 the CIA would not want to reveal. That's a very different 22 situation than the NYPD going to a conference without making 23 any efforts to ensure who is present, without making any 24 efforts to secure the participants' cooperation and not 25 disseminating this information, knowing full well that

Proceedings

28

1 academics whose job it was to publish would be present.

2 THE COURT: Why is that different than the Muslim 3 Advocates versus United States Department of Justice where 4 the FBI allowed several Muslim Advocates, civil rights and 5 civil liberties groups to chat during the two-hour meeting 6 at the FBI headquarters?

7 MS. GLABERSON: So they were doing that to get 8 feedback on their policies. There was a purpose to that 9 meeting. Here we have the FBI in a PR campaign. We think 10 that's very different. There was no necessity, no need -- 11 the Department has put forward no need for explaining their 12 participation in this event any further than they waived, 13 yes, we agreed, waived our claims as to these slides.

14 Their argument is not that they had a necessity to 15 release this information, and therefore it's all still 16 protected. Their argument is we waived it, but they can't 17 prove it.

18 THE COURT: I think they make a double argument.
19 They state that the specific information has not been 20 imparted and it's not a public record. And they have 21 discretion to disclose or not disclose. They make a 22 multiple argument. They don't just make an argument stating 23 that it has not been disclosed.

24 MS. GLABERSON: So I don't understand that to be 25 contesting that this information was disclosed, I'll just

Proceedings

29

1 say that.

2 THE COURT: We'll find out in a moment. I think 3 that that's not the case.

4 MS. GLABERSON: And I'll point as a last comment, I 5 will point the Court to Cottone versus Reno, which is the 6 case for identification that's cited in our submission which 7 says very specifically that we don't have to provide hard 8 copy simulacrum. We did not have to provide a copy to the 9 court of a piece of information that was disclosed. The 10 photographs are overkill, that is not the threshold that we 11 have to meet. So that's all I'll say.

12 THE COURT: Counsel, I don't want you responding, 13 you will get the last word, but we touched on new 14 information so you should get an opportunity to respond.

15 MR. DANTOWITZ: Thank you, Your Honor.

16 It's our position in this argument that this case 17 is exactly like the notes because the petitioner --

18 THE COURT: Exactly like what?

19 MR. DANTOWITZ: Notes. What they've presented in 20 the form of Ms. Garvie's affidavit is exactly like the notes 21 that were issued in Muslim Advocates, and it's exactly 22 different than the emails in Johnson, which we also cited in 23 our argument. The reason is because it's the petitioner -- 24 and in Johnson the case there found that the information 25 sought to be for which the waiver was argued was exactly the

1 same as that, as that which was withheld. And that's a high 2 burden here, Your Honor.

3 The reason Ms. Garvie's affidavit is like notes, 4 it's because it's hearsay statements as to what she thinks 5 NYPD said or what she reported or what her notes suggested 6 was reported at the meeting.

7 We don't to have to confirm that, and we are not 8 going to confirm that because to do so we would in fact be 9 to perhaps effectuating our own waiver. And it's their 10 burden as the case and the law makes clear, as Your Honor 11 pointed out it's like a double burden.

12 They have to show that material -- that they want 13 to be now held and waived is exactly the same as that which 14 was disclosed before. And they can't do it. They just 15 said, oh, it might be there, oh, if it's there, then we're 16 out. Then maybe this was said at the conference. And if it 17 was said at the conference, then you waived it. That 18 doesn't satisfy the burden, Your Honor. It's not specific 19 enough.

20 Thank you.

21 THE COURT: Counsel, do you want to add anything?

22 MS. GLABERSON: (Nodding in the negative.)

23 THE COURT: You don't have to say anything. I want 24 you to have the last word if you want, okay, if you think 25 that you made your arguments well.

Proceedings

31

1 MS. GLABERSON: All I'll say is we believe we have 2 memorialized the specific information that was provided by 3 Detective Markiewicz at this conference to this mixed group 4 of attendees who had no obligation to keep it at all 5 confidential or secret. We point Your Honor to specific 6 examples, for instance paragraph 11, the sources of 7 photographs. We think this information is vital for the 8 public to know, and that there is no reason to continue its 9 withholding.

10 And I think that can take us to the next portion of 11 our afternoon to discuss the routineness of face recognition 12 and the vast amount of information that we have now that we 13 did not have a year ago when we were here arguing that 14 point.

15 THE COURT: Off the record.

16 (Whereupon, there is a discussion held off the 17 record.)

18 THE COURT: Let's go on the record.

19 I want to thank the parties for the written 20 submissions, as well as oral argument on this issue of 21 waiver.

22 I have reviewed the submissions, and I heard oral 23 argument, and I'm ready now to rule on this issue.

24 There is very little that is written on this issue 25 in the state courts. The one case that respondent's counsel

Proceedings

32

1 cited was a recent decision from the First Department, and 2 that is Matter of Luongo, L-U-O-N-G-O, versus Records Access 3 Officer, Civilian Complaint Review Board. The citation is 4 150 A.D.3d page 13. It's a decision from 2017.

5 The Appellate Division First Department stated that 6 the prior disclosure of records concerning other officers -- 7 in that case we are talking about police officers.

8 The Luongo case revolved around the arrest and 9 death of Eric Garner. The Appellate Division held that 10 prior disclosure of records concerning other officers cannot 11 act as an estoppel against objections to releasing the 12 records requested herein.

13 The Appellate Division First Department found that 14 nothing in the Freedom of Information Law restricts the 15 right of the agency if it so chooses to grant access to 16 records within any of the statutory exceptions, with or 17 without deletion of identifying details.

18 This case doesn't help too much, but nonetheless is 19 the latest pronouncement in the area.

20 The parties have looked to the federal courts. As 21 we all know that our state FOIL, Freedom of Information Law, 22 is modeled after the federal standard, and it is helpful to 23 review the federal cases in order to get enlightenment of 24 the law on any particular Freedom of Information issue. And 25 the parties were rightly guided to the federal court.

Proceedings

33

1 The federal court has a high burden that a
2 petitioner must meet in order for exemption to occur. Both 3 parties cited the case which sets forth the standard. The 4 case is Afshar, A-F-S-H-A-R, versus Department of State, 702
5 F.2d 1125, it's a D.C. Circuit decision from 1983.

6 In that case the D.C. Circuit held that a FOIA
7 plaintiff bears the burden of proving that the information 8 he seeks is (1) exactly the same (not "substantially 9 similar") as (2) information that is already in the public 10 domain.

11 This case has been cited approvingly by the Second 12 Circuit courts, Johnson versus Central Intelligence Agency, 13 309 F.Supp.3d 33. This is a recent decision from 2018. ~~The~~ 14 ~~southern -- strike that.~~

YH
15 The Southern District Judge, actually Chief Judge 16 McMahon cited approvingly. And the Chief Judge stated: The 17 stringency that is of what quickly became known as the 18 Afshar test for deciding whether FOIA protection for 19 national security information had been waived by the 20 Executive was made clear in another case.

21 And I won't cite it. But basically she goes 22 through the progeny of cases that emanated in Afshar and has 23 been adopted by D.C. courts, and has been decided 24 approvingly by the Second Circuit.

25 And the Chief Judge goes through the history citing

1 to various cases, and goes to another issue of what is a 2 permanent public record.

3 In the Johnson case the Chief Judge stated that you 4 have to identify with precision the information that is 5 being sought. And the Chief Judge found in this case they 6 were able to do so because it was ^{comprized of} emails.

9217
7.46.

7 And then went to the information whether or not the 8 information seeks resides in the public domain, he must show 9 that there exists a permanent public record. And the Chief 10 Judge described it as a safe harbor.

11 And the Chief Judge stated for something to be 12 public, it has to be, in some sense, be accessible to 13 members of the general public.

14 And the Chief Judge eventually stated that the 15 information did not remain in the public domain and denied 16 the request for waiver.

17 Let's now define more readily what the 18 public-domain doctrine is. And that is set forth in Muslim
19 Advocates versus United States Department of Justice, a 2011
20 decision from the U.S. District Court, D.C.

21 The public-domain doctrine is the paradigm for 22 evaluating the waiver of a potential FOIA exemption. Under 23 the public-domain doctrine, material is normally immunized
24 from disclosure under FOIA lose their protective cloak once 25 disclosed and preserved in a permanent public record.

Proceedings

35

1 In the case cited the FBI disclosed chapters 4, 5, 2 10 and 16 of a certain book to members of the general
3 public. It was argued that it can no longer rely on any 4 exemption to continue withholding the requested information.

5 It was argued the FBI, the respondent agency 6 contended that because the contested provisions of those 7 chapters have not been made part of a permanent public 8 record, the FBI has not waived any exemptions.

9 In this case the FBI allowed several civil rights 10 and civil liberties groups to view those disputed chapters 11 during a two-hour meeting at FBI headquarters.

12 The court noted that the attendees were permitted 13 to view and take notes on the disputed chapters for 14 approximately two hours. They were required to return the 15 documents at the end of the meeting. As none of the 16 disputed chapters left the FBI headquarters, the court found 17 there was no permanent public record of disputed chapters in 18 the public domain.

19 Let's now compare it to our case. The high burden 20 that the petitioner must meet is that the information it 21 seeks is exactly the same. They have not done so in this 22 case. The best they can do is those slides. The notes that 23 were taken and memorialized in the affidavit of Ms. Garvie 24 is insufficient as a matter of law to provide the exemption 25 at this stage.

Proceedings

36

1 Just because 35 attendees were there and took 2 notes, nothing other than the slides is exactly the same, 3 and the high burden has not been met.

4 Indeed, it also has to be in public domain as a 5 permanent public record. This too is not the case where 6 there is a limited summit of 35 people, which mainly was 7 comprised of individuals that were interested in furthering 8 their knowledge on the technology.

9 It's not in the public domain for those because 10 those releases were limited individuals, whether the person 11 who paid for it or not that makes it not better. It 12 actually shows that only those that could afford to pay for 13 it, $1,700 or so, which I think is probably not a good idea 14 for the respondents, but nonetheless, it shows if you have 15 money, you get information. If you don't, it sets a very 16 bad precedent, but nonetheless would not act as a precedent 17 to release that because 35 well-heeled individuals, entities
18 were able to get that information. It is a terrible policy.
19 And the public was not privy to it. Only those that had 20 paid could be privy to it, and would minimize the effect of 21 becoming in the public domain.

22 And therefore this Court has found that the 23 petitioner has not met its burden that there will be a 24 sweeping waiver of the exemption.

25 However, counsel has already conceded that the

Proceedings

37

1 information contained in the slides is exactly the same.
2 That cannot be readily denied. And has already conceded
3 that that would be released within seven days thereof.

4 The foregoing constitutes the order of the Court.
5 Off the record.

6 (Whereupon, there is a discussion held off the 7 record.)

8 THE COURT: Let's go back on the record.

9 Counsel, we have contempt remaining as one of the 10 issues to be dealt with today. Hopefully we could do that.
11 We have about 20 minutes left of the session. I guess this 12 is petitioner's counsel.

13 MS. GLABERSON: Can I just clarify something as to 14 the last order?

15 THE COURT: Yes.

16 MS. GLABERSON: So there were a couple of issues, 17 one is the information contained in the affidavit. And I'll 18 just note my objection to the ruling as to that.

19 THE COURT: So noted.

20 MS. GLABERSON: The information contained in the 21 slides appears elsewhere in the records. For instance, the 22 hours, that's just one example, the hours of the office. So 23 is there -- has Your Honor ruled as to where the information 24 is contained in those slides and those photographs? It is 25 now, you know, it has been waived and that's been conceded,

Proceedings

38

1 where that information exactly appears in the records.

2 THE COURT: So I was ruling on the affidavit. I 3 did not rule on the cross reference, if you will, from those 4 slides to other material. I asked you to argue that, and I
5 heard your argument. I haven't heard opposition yet. I 6 wasn't sure if that's been opposed, ~~or~~

7 MR. DANTOWITZ: It has been opposed for really the 8 reasons it comes down to, they can't just say it appears 9 elsewhere, they have to come and show Your Honor that it 10 appears elsewhere.

11 THE COURT: Well, why don't we have it in-camera
12 and preferably without prejudice. Let's do the in-camera, 13 if it pops up, we will deal with it then, because he's 14 correct. At this point I have no document that is in front 15 of me that would be subject to that. Unless we can do an 16 in-camera that may be more refocused as to a specific 17 document. And then maybe they will concede at that point in 18 time because it's silly. Let's take the hours of operation, 19 discovery, the hours of operation, if you got it already, 20 it's almost silly.

21 MR. DANTOWITZ: Right, it's silly, that's what I 22 would say. Actually the information they have, they have, 23 whether it appears elsewhere or not. Unredacting is just an 24 effort --

25 THE COURT: I choose not to rule on that at this

Proceedings

39

1 time. I choose to have an in-camera inspection. I will 2 rule on it at a later time, because I don't want to waste 3 more time. I think it's almost now a silly exercise. If 4 you have it, you have it. If it's out there, it's out
5 there. And it might be the exact same. It is redacting. I 6 can't rule at this juncture without a further in-camera
7 inspection on the argument, I have not ruled on that yet.

8 MS. GLABERSON: Thank you for clarifying.

9 So we have two outstanding issues, and one has been 10 lingering for quite a long time. I understood these oral 11 argument days were for the purpose of continuing our 12 discussion of the nonroutine techniques and procedures 13 exemption. So would you like to address that now?

14 THE COURT: I think you should address the contempt 15 because that's going to take longer. The question is can 16 you stay after 1 o'clock and come back in the afternoon and 17 complete this. I have other matters on, but I will spend a 18 little more time if you want.

19 MS. GLABERSON: Yes.

20 THE COURT: I want to try to accommodate you if I 21 can. So far I have done this ^{methodically} ~~positively~~. It took time.
22 You have been here since 10 o'clock. It took me an hour to 23 prepare and to read all the new material and pull the cases, 24 and you were sitting there patiently. But nonetheless, this 25 is not a run of the mill argument~~s~~ that you made. And I

CGA
12/18/19

Proceedings

40

1 wanted to give you the careful attention that these issues 2 needed. I didn't want to rule from the bench without 3 further discussion and further review of the record.

4 So I think the better choice of time now would be 5 to deal with the contempt. I don't think it's going to take 6 too long. The bigger issue of whether or not it would 7 normally take for the nonroutine or routine is the ultimate 8 issue, and it would take longer than 15 minutes, and I'd 9 rather not do that now. Let's deal with the sweet issue of 10 contempt.

11 Counsel.

12 MS. GLABERSON: So we set forward our arguments as 13 to why the Department is in contempt, nearly a year ago in 14 December of 2017, Your Honor, we were approaching the one 15 year anniversary of our first argument in this case coming 16 up on November 6th. And on that date Your Honor heard 17 argument and ruled that the Department must return and renew 18 its search for audit records, and Your Honor's order was 19 clear, that the Department must complete that search within 20 30 days and report back. The Department has failed to do 21 so. And on top of that, the Department failed even to 22 respond to this motion.

23 THE COURT: There is no opposition to the motion.

24 MS. GLABERSON: The Department has now 10 months 25 late filed an opposition --

Proceedings

41

1 THE COURT: I saw it.

2 MS. GLABERSON: -- seeking Your Honor to excuse
3 their delay in responding for really no basis, arguing only 4 that counsel having gotten this case in May, five months 5 after the motion was served, five months after his 6 predecessor who had been on the case, for approximately five 7 months had the case, that he neglected to realize there were 8 no opposition records filed. There is no electronic docket.
9 It has been available at all times.

10 And we appeared twice. And in counsel's first 11 appearance on this case, the transcript shows that he was 12 aware at that time that the Department had not filed a 13 response.

14 So we talked earlier today about the CPLR and what 15 it allows Your Honor to do. But what it requires before 16 Your Honor can exercise your discretion in excusing delay, 17 it requires the person seeking an excuse to provide good 18 cause.

19 And in this case the Department has not provided 20 any good cause. And we think we documented that quite 21 clearly in our papers. I won't go into more detail.

22 And the Center by the Department's delay in 23 responding has been prejudiced. Throughout this year of 24 this proceeding, the Department has never fully answered the 25 question of what it has done to try to search for and

Proceedings

42

1 produce records in response to the Center's request for 2 audit records, has never fully responded to that question.

3 As of June of this year, the Department put in yet 4 another affidavit of Inspector Courtesis saying only, we 5 understand Your Honor has ordered us to look for this, to 6 the extent it exists, we'll let you know.

7 That is not a sufficient response. Your Honor 8 ordered them to do this in November of 2017. We are now, 9 tomorrow it will be November of 2018. It has been a year.
10 And the Center has a right to this information. FOIL 11 provides rights to information.

12 So we argue that Your Honor's order in November of 13 2017 was clear. The Department has been in contempt of it 14 for nearly a year, and has not shown on the merits
15 otherwise. And also that their opposition coming 10 months 16 late no excuse should not be considered in opposition to our 17 motion.

18 THE COURT: Counsel in opposition.

19 MR. DANTOWITZ: Thank you, Your Honor.

20 Regarding the timing, yeah, I messed up. I messed 21 up, and my predecessor did as well by not putting in a more 22 timely opposition. I would ask that that not be excused 23 under 2004.

24 Also ironic here is that in response to my motion 25 to strike the notice to admit, the petitioner said the

Proceedings

43

1 return date isn't until today. So you know, what's good for 2 the goose is good for the gander.

3 THE COURT: Let me just do this quickly. I'm not 4 going to default anyone. It's not the way I operate. I can 5 excuse a late submission, quite frankly, ongoing anyhow.
6 There has been negotiations, there has been in-camera
7 inspections, there has been arguments. While it is woefully 8 late, nonetheless it is here. Whether it's the return date 9 or not return date, I choose not to quibble over procedural 10 arguments.

11 I want to get to the substance as I have done to 12 the notice to admit, I will excuse any lateness, tardiness, 13 whether it be very late or not as late as to the notice to 14 admit. I choose not to dwell on procedural niceties, and 15 those can and will be excused by this Court, as I want to 16 get to the merits as I have done in every single aspect of 17 this case.

18 Let's move on to the substance.

19 MR. DANTOWITZ: Thank you, Your Honor.

20 Despite petitioner's argument, the issue here is 21 clearly very very narrow. Did Your Honor unequivocally 22 direct that the NYPD to search for and produce records by 23 January 3rd? The answer is no. And in fact petitioner
24 cited nothing in the record from the November 6, 2017 25 transcript that says so.

1 I will call Your Honor's attention to my affidavit 2 which was filed on October 4th, which is docket 114. And in 3 fact I point out the Court's statements. And what the Court 4 does is it requests the City to do various things, to find 5 out some information, to report back. It never directs us
6 to produce the records within 30 days. All this is is a 7 series of requests. And the only thing that petitioner can 8 point to is quoted in paragraph 14, which is where Your 9 Honor explains in over 25 pages later in the transcript, as 10 a matter of fact, 35 pages later in the transcript, Your 11 Honor characterized what we will -- what my predecessor had 12 agreed to do as a search -- well, in fact, it wasn't a 13 search. It was a series of requests to find information.

14 Nonetheless, Your Honor characterized it as a 15 search and said, "How much time do you need to do that?
16 Thirty days?" Mr. Tuffaha responded, "Yes, Your Honor.
17 That should be fine."

18 Bear in mind, the law of contempt there has to be a 19 clear unequivocal mandate that was in effect. That is --

20 THE COURT: Have you done it? Have you actually 21 complied?

22 MR. DANTOWITZ: We produced more documents after 23 that date and recently.

24 THE COURT: Have you complied with that request 25 even though you believe it to be equivocal?

Proceedings

45

1 MR. DANTOWITZ: Yes, Your Honor, we went back, in 2 fact, we submitted -- part of that request was to report to 3 Your Honor on the next conference certain things. We did 4 that. We produced documents after that. And also, part of 5 the response was those supplemental submissions that both 6 parties made regarding our next conference session regarding 7 why it constitutes a routine or nonroutine technique.

8 So, Your Honor, it's clear here, there's no 9 unequivocal mandate that was in effect that directed us to 10 do what the petitioner told us to do. Again, any 11 ambiguities are to result in our favor, and it's really 12 quite as simple as that.

13 Thank you.

14 THE COURT: Counsel, you get the last word.

15 MS. GLABERSON: Counsel here represents that the 16 NYPD has complied, and that's just unequivocally not true.
17 The Courtesis affidavit that I pointed to and the record in 18 this case shows that the NYPD has never, never completed its 19 search for records responsive to the Center's request for 20 audit records, records of past use of the system.

21 It made various arguments at various points. They 22 have come into this court and said that there are so many 23 records that might be responsive that this request may be 24 unduly burdensome. They never filed anything to that 25 effect. They've indicated that there are records that

Proceedings

46

1 exist, and they've never informed us, they've never informed
2 this Court what they have done to track those records down 3 or produce them.

4 Counsel is correct that records have been produced.
5 We recently got a disclosure of records that appear to be 6 responsive to the Center's request for procurement records, 7 records that we knew existed and hadn't been turned up in 8 the initial search. But as I referenced, the latest 9 statement as to the audit request was in June, and that 10 statement from Inspector Courtesis says, to the extent there 11 are records we -- I don't have it exactly in front of me 12 right now, but basically, we will let you know. They will 13 be searched for, and we will update the Court.

14 In June, nine months, or whatever that would be, 15 after Your Honor's unequivocal order that the search be 16 renewed, the NYPD put in a sworn document before this Court 17 that it had not yet completed the request. So to stand here 18 today and argue that it has complied, is simply a lie on the 19 record.

20 MR. DANTOWITZ: I go back, Your Honor, to what this 21 motion is about, which is whether there was an order in 22 effect on November 6th to do certain things by January 3rd, 23 and it wasn't.

24 Again, I point to Your Honor's statements that are 25 quoted in paragraph 11 and 12 of my -- paragraph 11 -- and

1 paragraph 11 of my affirmation and also paragraph 12 is just 2 nothing of the sort.

3 With respect to audit records, we've been clear 4 we're thinking that the only audit records that exist are 5 instances that are within each file where a request for 6 facial recognition technology was made and the results of 7 that. But there's no report that can be printed out because 8 there's no computer data. All there is are these worksheets 9 that are contained within each file, which we put in the 10 submissions, and we all had to go back and search each file 11 because that was totally burdensome. That's a different 12 argument.

13 But in terms of what this motion is about, is about 14 what was directed on November 6th, what was clearly 15 unequivocally directed, and that's not here.

16 MS. GLABERSON: Your Honor can review the 17 transcript and recall the hearing. It was clear. It is 18 clear. And counsel here represents that this, you know, 19 they've identified what the records are and that's the end.
20 But they've never put in an affirmation, they've never 21 provided evidence. Counsel's representations here are not 22 evidence. They have never provided evidence of this search.

23 THE COURT: Okay, whether or not you believe that 24 it is equivocal or unequivocal, quite frankly, I thought it 25 was unequivocal. There was a direction. I thought you just

Proceedings

48

1 needed extra time to do so. I'm going to make an 2 unequivocal direction to do so, that you go through the 3 process discussed in the transcript -- I'm not going back 4 and forth -- and how much time will you need to do so.

5 Your prior colleague said 30 days, and we agreed.
6 I think ~~it was~~ it behooves you to next time to ask the 7 Court whether or not there was a direction and not ignore 8 it. I'm not going to hold you in contempt. You are an 9 agency of the City of New York. But nonetheless, it was 10 quite negligent. I'll use that word. It wasn't intentional 11 to ignore a court order.

12 MR. DANTOWITZ: And I apologize for the neglect, 13 Your Honor, without using it as an excuse. I'm only reading 14 a cold transcript. I wasn't --

15 THE COURT: I'm not blaming you, but now it's 16 unequivocal.

17 MR. DANTOWITZ: I understand, Your Honor.

18 THE COURT: When can you complete the task you were 19 required to do about a year ago? You should have been 20 working on it. I know your colleague was there and had been 21 working consistently in trying to get this done. We had 22 spoken off the record. And I'm quite amazed that you 23 believe there was no order, because we spoke about it in 24 conferences, which was not on the record, it was done in my 25 robing room. I'm amazed that you believe there is no

Proceedings

49

1 ongoing order. But nonetheless, I will ascribe it ^b negligent ^{ce} 2 rather than intentional failure to comply with an order.

3 MR. DANTOWITZ: Again, Your Honor, I wasn't there.
4 I don't know the colloquy --

5 THE COURT: But your colleague was there. I have a 6 good memory. Your colleague was there.

7 MR. DANTOWITZ: My colleague was there. I'm only 8 focusing on what was my --

9 THE COURT: Again, I don't want to get into 10 procedural stuff. I want to deal with substance. When will 11 it be completed? If you don't have it, put it in an 12 affidavit saying you don't have it. Or you have done a 13 search and you cannot comply because X, Y and Z.

14 MR. DANTOWITZ: One month.

15 THE COURT: I'm sorry?

16 MR. DANTOWITZ: One month.

17 THE COURT: That would be 30 days from now?

18 MR. DANTOWITZ: Yes.

19 THE COURT: Let's make it clear, I'm going to pick 20 a date, today is the 31st of October, so you will have it 21 complete by, can you do it by November 30th, is that 22 sufficient, because otherwise we go into the next week.
23 That's 30 days.

24 MR. DANTOWITZ: Yes, November 30th, Your Honor -- 25 there are three holidays in there.

Proceedings

50

1 THE COURT: Is it unequivocal you are supposed to 2 get it done by November 30th?

3 MR. DANTOWITZ: Yes, we are just thinking of the 4 time.

5 THE COURT: I'm not sure if you understand my 6 order.

7 MR. DANTOWITZ: Ms. Moore just reminded me 30 days, 8 also during that time there are three holidays during that 9 period of time. So if we can have until December 4th.

10 THE COURT: Any objection to December 4th?

11 MS. GLABERSON: I guess that's fine. I will look 12 at my calendar.

13 THE COURT: No, no. That's the time period that 14 she has to complete.

15 MR. DANTOWITZ: Right.

16 THE COURT: Not coming back on December 4th.

17 MR. DANTOWITZ: Right.

18 THE COURT: And I'm running out of time. It's only 19 a few days more.

20 MS. GLABERSON: Yes.

21 THE COURT: December 4th is the final date, please 22 get it done one way or another.

23 MR. DANTOWITZ: Yes, Your Honor.

24 MS. GLABERSON: And I would just like to remind 25 counsel to review the transcript. We had discussed the 1 scope of this request. Your Honor has previously a year 2 ago --

3 THE COURT: I don't have the time to go over 4 details. Please look at the record. And I will tell you it
5 was unequivocal. It was an order. It wasn't a request, 6 like I would ask you to go get some candy from a candy store 7 for Halloween. This is an order. I don't speak in terms of 8 requests. It's an order.

9 MS. GLABERSON: The search must comply with the 10 spirit of the request from the record.

11 THE COURT: I'm not going to speak to this anymore.
12 It's now 1 o'clock. Do you want to come back in the 13 afternoon to complete more stuff?

14 MS. GLABERSON: Yes, Your Honor.

15 MR. DANTOWITZ: Yes.

16 THE COURT: 2:15, please.

17 Off the record.

18 A F T E R N O O N S E S S I O N

19 THE COURT: Let's go on the record.

20 We are on the record.

21 I had an off the record discussion with counsel.
22 We have one overarching issue remaining, whether or not the 23 NYPD's facial recognition technology is routine or 24 nonroutine is the remaining large issue.

25 Counsel off the record stated correctly that we

Proceedings

52

1 have been doing this now for the better part of a year, and 2 we only have now more information to supplement the record, 3 that is true.

4 I have never ruled on that issue. I think the time
5 is right for determination. I'm going to allow brief
6 discussion on that issue, and then hopefully I will make a 7 ruling.

8 Counsel.

9 MS. GLABERSON: So since we were here a year ago
10 and had this argument, we've gained quite a bit more 11 information about the way the New York City Police 12 Department uses facial recognition technology, and the way 13 it treats its information about face recognition technology.

14 So as to the question of routineness, we now have 15 through the records that the Department has disclosed 16 through the presentation that the Department gave at the 17 summit through press reports and its own documents, we now 18 know that the New York City Police Department seems to use 19 facial recognition technology in virtually every case in 20 which there is a question of identity and photographic 21 evidence. They use facial recognition technology in all 22 manner of identification scenarios, ranging from a person at 23 a hospital who can't identify herself, to a man stealing a 24 couple of beers from a CVS, to larcenies, burglaries and 25 murders.

Proceedings

53

1 This technology is not specialized to any 2 particular area of inquiry. It is an evidence processing
3 tool that the NYPD uses across all manner of investigations 4 far enough.

5 We also now know that every arrestee in New York, 6 in New York covered by the NYPD's jurisdiction is subject to 7 facial recognition database. When we were here last 8 November, Your Honor asked me when we were talking about 9 comparison between face recognition and fingerprinting. I 10 didn't have a very satisfying answer to your question, isn't 11 it true every single person who comes through the system 12 gets fingerprinted. I said yes. And you said wouldn't that 13 make it routine. And I said they also get mugshots. And 14 that is true.

15 And we have put forward ample evidence at this 16 point showing that every mugshot, both of adults and of 17 juveniles, as well as photos from desk appearances, as well 18 as other photo sources, people applying for pistol licenses.
19 They are all contained in a number of the filings of the 20 Department's own records and Ms. Garvie's affidavit. All of 21 these sources of images, and in that way among many others.

22 Face recognition cannot principally print something 23 in a principled pattern be distinguished from 24 fingerprinting. It's used across investigations with no 25 specification as to the type of investigation.

Proceedings

54

1 Every single arrestee is subject to this system.
2 It's being put into the system and subject to searches. The 3 agency clearly uses the system we now know multiple times 4 per day, and it's increasing financially to the use of this 5 system all the time.

6 So in all of these ways facial recognition is the 7 evidence processing tool that the NYPD uses. Once that 8 evidence is already collected, it is used every day 9 routinely. It touches all persons who have ever had any 10 kind of photo interaction with the New York City Police 11 Department, and that includes every arrestee, just like 12 fingerprinting. And it's used in all manner of crimes small 13 to large anytime it appears there is photo evidence and a 14 need to identify.

15 So we argue that face recognition is 16 quintessentially just like fingerprinting, routine. And 17 that this exemption for nonroutine techniques cannot be 18 applied.

19 We also now have information about the way that the 20 Department itself understands this obligation that there is 21 need for secrecy around face recognition. Throughout the 22 course of this case while coming into court and professing 23 that there is this dire need to maintain the secrecy of this 24 information to avoid, you know, would-be bad actors 25 modifying their behavior in response. They have gone out

Proceedings

55

1 and spoken to the press, published accounts about their 2 views of face recognition, published details about how it 3 works, and recently gone to a group of paying attendees, and 4 as Your Honor mentioned this morning, giving a different set 5 of information to those with the resources to pay or the 6 power to pay for access than they do for the general public.

7 And this scenario where we have a technology that's 8 touching people from across the state, all walks of life, 9 every arrestee, and those people are subject to these dire 10 risks of face recognition, of being hauled into court in a 11 criminal matter on the basis of an erroneous identification 12 on the basis of a misuse of this technology.

13 We argue that it is in the public interest to find 14 that this technology is routine, that this invention cannot 15 be applied here. And that the information that the 16 Department has withheld on the subject should be disclosed.

17 And just one final note. To the extent Your Honor 18 does not agree, we do still need to continue our in-camera 19 inspection of the records because what we also have seen 20 based on all of this information from the beginning of our 21 in-camera and our most recent this experience at the summit
22 is that at the very least the Department has over broadly 23 exercised the use of the invention, that there is 24 information that is included in these records that 25 regardless of the outcome of this discussion is segregable,

Proceedings

56

1 it can be disclosed, and it is not covered by the exemption.

2 Thank you.

3 THE COURT: Opposition.

4 MR. DANTOWITZ: Thank you, Your Honor.

5 Part of what Your Honor had inquired about in 6 November regarding the case law is what is the definition of 7 nonroutine technique. And sadly the case law is not 8 particularly helpful in that regard. Most of the cases 9 really rely upon, for instance, they talk about -- there's 10 really an outcome here, an outcome-based determination in 11 disclosing the technique would -- disclosing information 12 would reveal methods and capabilities that would allow 13 somebody to undermine that particular investigative 14 technique or undermine the technology that would constitute 15 something that's nonroutine.

16 I think also in what I think is somewhat overlooked 17 at, she also says that the purpose of -- while it's not to 18 enable persons to use agency records to frustrate any 19 ongoing investigations in addition. So it's more than just 20 the frequency of use. In fact, the courts also say that 21 time-tested, time-tested techniques can be nonroutine.

22 We all know that NYPD can in bust and buy, bust and 23 buy operations, we all know they use surveillance of some 24 sort. They do undercover investigations. These things are 25 well-known. But the details and the manner of which those 1 are done make those sorts of investigative tools nonroutine.

2 Similarly here, Your Honor, as Your Honor pointed 3 out this morning, we know it's public knowledge that facial 4 recognition technology is used. That's not the point. The 5 issue is how is it used, and we are revealing material 6 concerning its use and its capabilities and its limitations, 7 revealing matters that would allow somebody to undermine its 8 efficacy.

9 The petitioner goes on and on about the frequency
10 with which it's used. Your Honor, they clearly misstate -- 11 they overstate their position. It's not true. What they 12 say is -- and Ms. Glaberson just said it right now, we seem 13 to use it in all cases. There is no evidence of that 14 whatsoever. In fact, it's very clear from our submission, 15 we certainly don't use it in every case.

16 THE COURT: I need to stop you because I need to 17 get the details. I know that you provided affidavits from 18 various individuals, keep both from them, and tell me in 19 what instance the facial recognition technology is used, 20 what is the import, what is the circumstances, what is the 21 purview of facial recognition technology, and why would it 22 be nonroutine.

23 I need -- I want you to read into the record 24 affidavits that actually support this. I think you had 25 submitted them. It's been a while.

Proceedings

58

1 MR. DANTOWITZ: We did submit, Your Honor. I can 2 tell you. The instances in which it is not used is clearly 3 every complaint and every --

4 THE COURT: But that --

5 MR. DANTOWITZ: It's not used in every instance.

6 THE COURT: Let's go off the record.

7 (Whereupon, there is a discussion held off the 8 record.)

9 THE COURT: Let's go back on the record.

10 MR. DANTOWITZ: Thank you, Judge. I know Your 11 Honor is focusing right now on frequency and the 12 circumstances, but I don't want to neglect the main part of 13 that disclosure -- that the case law it is found where 14 disclosure would undermine the capability. I know we are 15 focusing on frequency now but that section --

16 THE COURT: I'll allow you to argue both.

17 MR. DANTOWITZ: Sure -- excuse me?

18 THE COURT: I will allow you to argue both.

19 MR. DANTOWITZ: Okay, so let's start at that the 20 first, if you don't mind, and come back to frequency.

21 So it's clear and there is evidence in all of the 22 City's affidavits, including the Coello affidavit, Courtesis 23 affidavit, McClelland affidavit, which talks about how the 24 documents are complete with details concerning the 25 capabilities and the details, and the operation of the

Proceedings

59

1 details regarding facial recognition technology. Certainly 2 disclosing that would allow somebody to undermine its 3 efficacy. This is very unlike fingerprinting, by the way.

4 And putting aside fingerprinting just for a moment.
5 Although the cases do hold that fingerprints are routine, 6 there is actually no basis for -- no reason for that 7 finding.

8 I can surmise to one is by the time that 9 announcement was made, fingerprinting was so well-known and 10 so ridiculously used that it was found to be routine.

11 Incidentally, the Attorney General has said, and 12 this is quoted in our papers, that if modifications or 13 improvements are made to fingerprinting technique and 14 technology perhaps it would no longer be found to be 15 routine.

16 So clearly whether under different circumstances 17 and perhaps under more modern technology, fingerprinting 18 actually might be found to be nonroutine.

19 The other thing is that fingerprinting is very 20 unlike facial recognition technology, because the only way 21 to defeat fingerprinting is by mutilating one's fingers.
22 It's not so. That's an unreasonable thing. And nobody is 23 going to go to those lengths for that technology, so that's 24 an obvious way of trying to evade detection. That is not 25 true as to facial recognition technology.

Proceedings

60

1 One could surmise about ways that FRT can be 2 defeated, but it's not as easy as wearing -- or it may not 3 be as easy as wearing fake mustaches, that was I think 4 suggested at one point, or perhaps even a ski mask. There 5 may be other ways based on camera angles, types of the 6 quality of a photograph, and other things that could 7 actually defeat a viable -- the creation of a viable image
8 match. But it's not necessarily so that it's so well-known 9 and so obvious somebody could defeat facial recognition 10 technology. That distinction is very much from 11 fingerprinting.

12 Regarding the secrecy argument that petitioner 13 made, that's certainly a rehashing or a factual way of 14 making up their waiver argument again.

15 FOIL is permissive, as Your Honor actually ruled 16 this morning on another issue, FOIL is permissive, and we 17 can disclose certain information relating to the use of FRT 18 while still deciding to withhold others.

19 In this case, obviously the Police Department made 20 certain determinations that the material may disclose would 21 not so undermine the use of FRT.

22 Petitioner also goes on to say that facial 23 recognition technology is used in every every case, in every 24 case, because they say every arrestee is subject -- and note 25 the language that she used -- subject to FRT. That's very

Proceedings

61

1 different than is used in every case.

2 What they do is the petitioner does create a false 3 equation stating facial recognition technology uses
4 mugshots. Mugshots are taken of everyone who's arrested, 5 therefore, facial recognition technology is used in every 6 case. Well, that's not so. And here we are getting into 7 the frequency of it.

8 So it's clear from our submissions, and I'll direct 9 your attention now to the Courtesis affidavit of June 6th of 10 this year, June 6, 2018, and the Exhibits A, B that are 11 attached thereto.

12 And it's clear from those that facial recognition 13 technology cannot possibly be used in connection with every 14 arrest, and certainly not every complaint. It goes without 15 saying that it's not used in every case in which a 16 perpetrator is unidentified. The number of times that 17 facial recognition technology is requested is far far less 18 than the number of times -- it's far far less than the 19 number of times that a perpetrator is unknown to the Police 20 Department.

21 In terms of its use, again, I'm calling Your 22 Honor's attention to the Courtesis affidavit at paragraph 5.
23 It says, quote, FRT, referring to facial recognition 24 technology, is not used in every investigation in which an 25 individual is unidentified. Rather, the decision to use FRT

Proceedings

62

1 is left to the discretion of the investigating detectives
2 and their supervisors.

3 So if they want to request that FRT be used, they 4 can request it. But they don't have to. And certainly 5 there is no evidence that they do it in every case in which 6 somebody is unidentified. And that's in the first sentence, 7 "FRT is not used in every investigation in which an 8 individual is unidentified."

9 He goes on in paragraph 6, "In fact, FRT is used in 10 a small fraction of cases."

11 He goes on and cites the data regarding arrests and 12 the complaints.

13 He goes on in paragraph 9 to say that facial 14 recognition technology is used not only by the Facial 15 Identification Section, but is also used at times by the 16 Police Department's Intelligence Bureau. And then it says 17 that it's used less than a hundred times a year.

18 So I think we have -- and it goes on to say NYPD
19 utilizes FRT in a very small fraction of its investigations.

20 So I think -- there is certainly no evidence quoted 21 in the record that we use FRT in connection with every case.
22 And certainly not in connection even more narrowly in 23 connection with a case where somebody is unidentified. Or 24 even there is no evidence when somebody is unidentified and 25 you happen to have a photograph.

1 So what the petitioner is suggesting is that we use
2 FRT in all manner of cases, and they cite specific examples.
3 Well, Your Honor, it would be mistaken if Your Honor were to 4 infer from that specific -- those specific uses of FRT to 5 generalize that we use it in every case. There is just no 6 evidence.

7 Clearly we use it in certain cases. The petitioner 8 cites certain examples. That's fine. I won't deny that we 9 use it in certain examples. I'm not going to stand here and 10 deny that we use it in those particular examples, because we 11 use it. It makes sense to use it. But that doesn't mean we 12 use it all the time.

13 Petitioner goes on to call facial recognition 14 technology as an evidence processing tool. I believe in 15 certain cases they make a distinction between evidence 16 processing and evidence gathering.

17 That distinction is found nowhere in -- FOIA
18 permits -- I couldn't find it in FOIA, jurisprudence, 19 because it doesn't exist. It's a misnomer, Your Honor.

20 In fact, in certain facial recognition technology, 21 yes, it processes evidence, but it also gathers evidence, 22 because by comparing a photograph to a known sample, it 23 gathers evidence as to whether a particular person is a 24 perpetrator or who a particular -- who perhaps a missing 25 person might be. To suggest that it's evidence processing,

Proceedings

64

1 and that's the distinction, and that's what matters here, is 2 just no basis for making that sort of distinction.

3 Again, we would suggest that there's -- that the 4 key here for Your Honor to determine is based on thinking 5 its progeny whether disclosure of information would 6 undermine the use of facial recognition technology, and on 7 that definition, plus it's infrequency of use, plus the fact 8 that FRT is used by a specialized unit, by individuals who 9 are specially trained on specialized technology.

10 Perhaps one day FRT might be considered routine, 11 but even as most -- as recently as 2017, even in one of the 12 exhibits cited by petitioner which is Exhibit T, which is an 13 article from Forensic Magazine says, although facial 14 recognition technology has been around for years, it's still 15 considered an open and coming technology.

16 So, yes, it may be used, and in fact its use may be 17 increasing year by year, but it's not used to the point now 18 where we can confidently say, confidently say that it's 19 routinely used.

20 Again, disclosure would undermine its use, and the 21 frequency with which it's used should not be a 22 consideration. It's not sufficient to justify a finding 23 that this is not nonroutine.

24 Thank you, Judge.

25 If I may, one other thing. Just bear in mind, Your

Proceedings

65

1 Honor, that we also have other exemptions to much of the 2 same thing.

3 THE COURT: I'm not dealing with this now.

4 MR. DANTOWITZ: I'm not going to argue --

5 THE COURT: You're not waiving your right with 6 respect to the other exemptions.

7 Counsel, you have the last word, and then I'm going 8 to rule.

9 MR. DANTOWITZ: And Your Honor --

10 THE COURT: I'll give you, Counsel, an opportunity.
11 I won't cut you off.

12 MS. GLABERSON: I'll just start by reminding 13 everyone that it is the City's burden -- it is the Police 14 Department's burden to show that the material falls squarely 15 within the exemption. And while counsel relies heavily on 16 the Courtesis affidavit for good reason because it is the 17 only substantive piece of evidence that the Department has 18 put forward to date.

19 That affidavit provides only conclusory assertions.
20 It does not provide information on which this Court can base 21 a decision to find that facial recognition is the nonroutine 22 technique such that all information withheld is subject to 23 the exemption.

24 First, I'd like to focus on comparison 25 fingerprinting for another moment.

Proceedings

66

1 So counsel attempts to distinguish fingerprinting, 2 and they've done this throughout the case, but provides no
3 principled basis on which to do so. So, again, when we come 4 back to the issue of whether fingerprinting can be evaded in 5 some way. And for some reason the Department cannot get 6 their mind around the fact that an individual can wear 7 gloves, it isn't easy, there are obvious ways to avoid 8 fingerprint detection, and yet that does not in and of 9 itself make fingerprinting a nonroutine technique.

10 Similarly, the Department has put forward
11 assertions that there are ways that individuals could evade 12 detection based on face recognition if the information in 13 these records were revealed. But the records that have been 14 revealed and the absolute absence of any plausible basis for 15 this or plausible argument on this count in the evidence 16 that the Department has put forward, shows that this is -- 17 it's really just another conclusory assertion. The 18 Department has not supported its argument on this -- on this 19 count.

20 Of course there are ways that individuals can avoid 21 having their photograph taken. And Mr. Courtesis attempts 22 to confuse the issue saying that, for instance, people could 23 learn how to make alters to hide their facial features or 24 how to avoid certain angles from the camera's focal length.

25 Well, the Center's request has not asked anything

Proceedings

67

1 about cameras or where they are or what focal length. And 2 from what we have seen from the records so far that 3 information is nowhere in here. And were we to come across 4 that during our in-camera review, we could have that 5 discussion. But that in and of itself does not establish 6 that there is some way that knowing the safeguards, the 7 checks, the standards, the training, any limits at all that 8 are placed on how this Department can modify, play with, 9 substitute, focus on images, how that would at all allow 10 someone to evade detection.

11 What we have seen in the slides that we discussed 12 this morning is that, for example, the Department felt very 13 comfortable revealing to the attendees, paying attendees 14 that an open mouth might make a photograph more difficult to 15 pass through the system, but that they Photoshop, the mouth 16 appears closed, rotate faces, and now they're able to use 17 the photograph.

18 So the records that have been provided thus far 19 undercut these conclusory assertions completely.

20 Now, as to fingerprinting and this discussion of 21 frequency, again, this is another instance in which the 22 Department sets up a straw man to battle and does not 23 confront our argument directly. No one has ever argued that 24 either face recognition or fingerprinting is used in every 25 case. That would be a waste of resources. Where identity

1 is not an issue, of course, police do not ask for a 2 fingerprint search to try to identify an unknown individual.

3 What the Department tries to do here is both 4 confuse the numerator and confuse the denominator of the 5 fraction it hopes Your Honor considers. We're not talking 6 about every arrest, every complaint, every allegation of a 7 crime in New York City. We are talking about, is this 8 technology specialized to a specific purpose, or is it used 9 routinely, is it used in all manner of investigations with 10 no limitations, is it touching all sorts of New Yorkers. I 11 will refer back to our conversation in November.

12 Fingerprinting is ubiquitous in the Department's own words 13 in one of their submissions. But they fail to distinguish 14 why, why is fingerprinting ubiquitous if facial recognition 15 is not. It's because every arrestee is fingerprinted. But 16 that same fact is true of fingerprinting. There is no way 17 to print in a principled way to distinguish these two.

18 So anyway, I'll just return to, it is the City's 19 burden and in the case of -- one, its insufficient evidence.
20 The Center, on the other hand, provided multiple affidavits 21 from Ms. Garvie regarding information. We've attached 22 examples of information that appear in the records showing 23 that face recognition is integrated into the arrest booking 24 system right along with fingerprinting, that based on the 25 Department's own records it's used right along with

Proceedings

69

1 fingerprinting, it is used with every arrest that the 2 Department has revealed to the summit attendees that all 3 arrest photos, all juveniles, all desk appearance tickets, 4 all of those sources of photographs are made subject to the 5 system.

6 And that the slides show that there is no
7 specialization to this technology. It is used in petty 8 larcenies like stolen beers from CVS, it used in 9 non-criminal identification, non-criminal matters, and it is 10 used throughout the City's -- the Department's work. In 11 that way this technology is very different from, for 12 instance, the manual in Fink. We all keep returning to 13 that. The Court made a distinction between specialized 14 procedures for a specialized type of investigation, nursing 15 home investigations. And specifically ordered that certain 16 pages be disclosed that cover techniques that will be used 17 in any investigation.

18 And that's what we have here. We have a technique
19 that does not allow the City to do anything it couldn't do 20 before in terms of comparing an unknown photo to known a 21 photo, it just allows them to do it more quickly, it 22 presents serious risks, and it does not at all specialize in 23 the way that Fink is contemplated.

24 So we ask that Your Honor find that face 25 recognition is routine, and order that the Department not be

Proceedings

70

1 permitted to assert the exemption.

2 THE COURT: Thank you very much.

3 I'm not going to ask for further arguments. This 4 has been going on for almost a year now. I think it's time 5 for a decision on the open issue.

6 Let's just first discuss the standard. Counsel for 7 petitioner is correct, the burden is squarely on the 8 ~~petitioner~~ ^{respondent} to show an exemption as to records under FOIL are 9 to be disclosed, unless it meets the enumerated exemptions 10 under FOIL.

11 That is the straightforward standard. I think we 12 all know that. Anyone that mixes up the standard is subject 13 to reversal.

14 So the standard is the ~~petitioner~~ ^{respondent} has the burden --

15 MS. GLABERSON: Respondent.

16 THE COURT: I apologize.

17 The respondent has the burden, the agency, to come 18 forward that the exemption applies. The petitioner has no 19 burden whatsoever in showing the exemption.

20 Here the exemption is under Public Officers Law 21 section 87(2)(e)(iv), exempted records are compiled for law 22 enforcement purposes that would reveal nonroutine criminal 23 investigative techniques or procedures.

24 I'm not addressing any other exemption at this 25 time. This is limited to that. We will engage in further

Proceedings

71

1 discussion/argument as we had in the past with regard to 2 anything else that remains, and quite frankly, there is not 3 much more left. This is really the crux of the issue.

4 The latest case that I had researched came down in 5 2016. There are others that came up in the past.

6 The matter of Grabell, G-R-A-B-E-L-L, versus New 7 York City Police Department. In that case petitioner filed 8 a FOIL request with the NYPD seeking documents pertaining to 9 the Z-backscatter vans, B-A-C-K-S-C-A-T-T-E-R. Those vans
10 were essentially mobile X-ray machines that could penetrate 11 other vans and vehicles and can see through it.

12 The petitioner sought reports of past deployments 13 of the vans that were not related to any ongoing 14 investigations; policies, procedures and training manuals
15 regarding the vans; records sufficient to disclose total 16 number and aggregate cost of the vans purchased by NYPD; 17 tests or reports regarding radiation dose or other health 18 and safety effects of the vans.

19 The Supreme Court granted the FOIL request. There 20 was an appeal by NYPD to the Appellate Division. The 21 Appellate Division reversed.

22 ~~The court stated -- strike that.~~

23 The Appellate Division stated that the court erred
24 in ordering disclosure of records relating to past 25 deployments, policies, procedures, training materials,

1 aggregate cost and total numbers of the vans.

2 The Appellate Division cited to the Matter of Asian 3 American Legal Defense and Education Fund versus the NYPD,
4 125 A.D.3d 531, First Department, leave denied, 26 NY3d 919
5 of (2016)¹⁴, held that this exemption applied, which ~~was the~~⁷⁵ -- 6 it revealed a nonroutine criminal investigative techniques 7 or procedures.

8 This is not the same as the Z-backscatter vans, 9 ~~another~~, but nonetheless that is the standard.

10 I'm not going to cite any more cases because none
11 of the cases really are on point. There was really no case 12 that has been cited that specifically touches upon this new 13 technology, facial recognition technology.

14 In support of the exemption, the respondent sets
15 forth the affidavit of Joseph Courtesis.

16 Off the record.

17 (Whereupon, there is a discussion held off the 18 record.)

19 THE COURT: Back on the record.

20 Mr. Courtesis is an inspector assigned as the 21 commanding officer of the Real Time Crime Center -- the Real 22 Time Crime Center, I'll call it the Center -- oversees 23 Facial Identification Section. The affidavit is sworn to on 24 June 6, 2018.

25 In paragraph 6 of that affidavit, Mr. Courtesis

1 opines and states that facial recognition is used in a very 2 small fraction of cases. According to Mr. Courtesis, there
 3 were over five and a half million crimes reported to NYPD 4 between 2006 and 2016, approximately half a million crimes 5 per year.

6 During 2015 the facial recognition technology, we 7 will call it FRT for short, as everyone has used that 8 acronym. So FRT had been used only 3,430 times in 2015.

9 In paragraph 7, Inspector Courtesis provides the 10 statistics from 2011 to 2016. The request went from 87 in 11 2011 and populated to 4,763 in 2016.

12 In paragraph 9, Inspector Courtesis states that 13 only the NYPD Intelligence Bureau has full access to FRT.
 14 And that the bureau utilizes FRT in less than a hundred 15 searches per year.

16 There are other instances in which FRT is used by 17 other units but that statistic is not available.

18 In paragraph 10, Inspector Courtesis states that 19 the equipment is specialized, and there is a specialized 20 skill ~~test~~^{set} to perform FRT. The investigators are trained to 21 use the FRT system in highly sophisticated ways, which he 22 did not describe, of course, ^{if} it may reveal the FRT's search 23 techniques and capabilities.

5/21/19

24 Inspector Courtesis in paragraph 12 thereof argues 25 that revealing the technology would allow individuals to

Proceedings

74

1 alter or disguise their facial features to avoid detection, 2 and how to avoid certain angles in a camera's focal length 3 to decrease the chance of detection.

4 Inspector Courtesis concludes that disclosure of 5 such information would reveal specific investigative 6 techniques that NYPD uses to obtain initial population of 7 potential matches and what specific techniques are used to 8 narrow the list of possible match leads. A would-be 9 criminal would learn about the sources of images, public or 10 otherwise, that FRT is able to cross-reference in performing 11 facial identification investigations.

12 He concludes that it would be detrimental to NYPD's 13 efforts to investigate reported incidents if NYPD were 14 required to reveal detailed information about the FRT system 15 and all its capabilities.

16 Petitioner argues that facial recognition
17 technology, FRT, is used in every case, from Alzheimer's 18 patients that were lost to petty crimes of beer being stolen 19 from CVS, larger crimes, unfortunately, burglary and murder, 20 that every arrestee is subject to facial recognition 21 database, every mugshot, every juvenile, every pistol
22 license is subject to FRT.

23 Petitioner equates the FRT technology to 24 fingerprinting, there is no specification, every single 25 person is subject to search in all manner of crime, small or

1 large are included.

2 In the last few weeks petitioner claims that it 3 became more apparent, that it's in the public's fear, it's 4 known to the press or published details in the infamous 5 summit that occurred in September of this year, which I need 6 not go into detail. We had plenty of discussion previously.

7 This Court finds that the respondent has met its 8 burden, that facial recognition technology, FRT, is 9 specialized versus routine.

10 Let me explain. It is now apparent that 11 fingerprinting, everyone knows how it is used, everyone 12 knows its capabilities, everyone knows its limitations.

13 FRT has not come that far yet. While it may occur 14 in the future, I'm not sure if next year or the following 15 year, most of the public including the petitioner don't know 16 how exactly it's deployed, its capabilities, its 17 limitations.

18 That is the investigative tool that the NYPD uses 19 to stay ahead of potential individuals that commit crime.
20 ~~It is something that has been strike that.~~ FRT has been 21 utilized only in a few cases. While it may have been used 22 to identify an Alzheimer's patient, so what. I think that's 23 a proper allocation of resources to help society.

24 Why it was used to track down a petty larceny of an 25 individual that stole beer from CVS.[?] It's a mystery to me

152
21
D'Gru

152
25
D'Gru

1 of one isolated incident where it was used for a petty 2 crime, does not mean that the entire FRT technology must be 3 disclosed.

4 It is a valuable resource in the ^{paraphrase} analogy of 5 resources that the NYPD utilizes to keep us safe. The 6 technology is not routine. It is specialized. Only a 7 certain unit within the NYPD is capable of doing it. It 8 requires significant training.

9 It is limited in scope, as Inspector Courtesis has 10 elicited accordingly in his affidavit, it's simply not 11 routine.

12 Moreover, as stated in the Matter of Grabell, the 13 disclosure of records related to FRT would reveal nonroutine 14 criminal investigation techniques or procedures.

15 I need not get into whether or not they can evade 16 detection or not.

17 This Court has squarely held that it is specialized 18 and not routine. Therefore, the exemption is valid.

19 We will continue discussions at a later date.

20 Speak to my clerk about a date to continue the 21 discussion for any other exemptions. I'll give you further 22 a date, and that should close out the analysis of this case.
23 Obviously this has to occur after the December 4th date 24 because we have to give the respondents an opportunity to 25 complete the search. And I'm hoping we can resolve this.

Proceedings

1
2
3
4
5
6
7
8
9
10 11 12
13 14
15
16
17
18 19 20 21
22
23
24
25

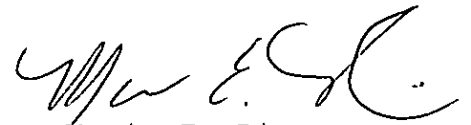

So if you have to go in the afternoon like here, we will be able to complete as much as possible.

Thank you for your time.

Please order the transcript.

* * * * *

Certified to be a true and accurate transcript of the stenographic minutes taken within.

Maria E. Rivera
Senior Court Reporter

SO ORDERED:

4/3/19